Presented with an elevated 3.44 acre stretch of private property in Maracaibo Estates, design savvy owners and their architect chose to capitalize on the natural contours of the land and welcomed the stone outcropping and mature forest’s input into the layout. This collaboration resulted in a spectacular Northwest modern aesthetic with a graceful minimalism that can only be born of exacting detail. While the home is impressive for its pristine open spaces and orderly architectural lines, it is also a place that feels instantly inviting and alive: a setting from which to observe nature up close in the utmost of comfort.
